Law. Says Ruling in Steve Nelson Case Striking Down Legislation in 42 States.

By EDWARD F. WOODS Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 2—The Supreme Court ruled today that the individual states are with-out power to prosecute and punish persons who advocate the violent overthrow of the United States Government. By a 6-to-3 decision the high tribunal thus struck down anti-sedition statutes in 42 states, Alaska and Hawaii which make it a crime to teach overthrow of federal, as well as state, gov-ernment by force. Specifically involved in the ruling was Pennsylvania's anti-sedition, law which is modeled after the federal statute known as the Smith act. The Smith act prohiibts the knowing advocacy of the overthrow of the Federal Government by force and violence.

of the vote for Stevenson.

If Stevenson should fall down in other primaries as he did in Minnesota, losing to Kefauver, it is possible that the Tennessee Senate would have the support of all of the 128 Illinois delegates, Eben said, pointing out that the primary results are not binding. Stevenson faces other tests in Florida and Callifornia.

In 1952 Kefauver entered the Illinois primary and received 56,601 votes. Stevenson, then Governor and insisting that he would not be a candidate for President, received 54,336 write-

ASSETS IN NEW JERSEY

NEWARK, N.J., April 2 (AP)

—The Government today seized the physical assets of the Communist party in New Jersey in an almost barren second-floor office here and forcibly ejected an occupant of the office.

The seizure by Treasury agents followed by three hours a press conference held in the office by Mrs. Martha Stone Asher, one of six Communists obvicted fast week in New Sayen, Conn., for violating the Smith Act.

The action by the Government was part of the United States' action to attach liens against the Communist party nationally. Notice of the seizure was served on Charles Nusser of Newark, whom Treasury agents identified as the public relations director of the party in New Jersey. Nusser, alone at the time, refused to vacate the premises. He was forcibly escorted from the place by two Newark patrolmen.

4 MEN SEIZED AS E. ST. LOUIS OPENS DRIVE TO BAR HOODLUMS

Crackdown-License Numbers of Police Characters Obtained Frem St. Louis.

A crackdown on St. Louis area hoodlums and hoodlum associates was announced today by Police Commissioner Russell T. Beebe of East St. Louis following the arrest of four St. Louis men at the east approach of Eads bridge early yesterday,

Those arrested were Jack Jo seph, living in the 100 block of North Kingshighway; Sam Randazzo, 1300 block of North Sev Delmar boulevard.

The arrests were made by Detective Sgt. Charles Lewis and Detective Elmer Hill, who said they obtained the license numbers of automobiles belonging to Joseph and Fiss from the special St. Louis hoodlum squad. Jusseph took over as head of

REPORT OF STALIN FLEEING MOSCOW A LIE, REDS INSIST

VIENNA, April 2 (AP) —The Austrian Communist party newspaper Volkstimme denounced as a lie yesterday reports that Stalin fled Moscow when Hitler's armies approached. There have been published reports that Nikita S. Khrushev, the Communist party bosschev, the Communist party boss.

There have been published reports that Nikita S. Khrushchev, the Communist party boss, made such a charge when he delivered a speech to the party congress denouncing Stalin. There has been no such confirmation from Moscow.

Volkstimme said that Stalin made numerous mistakes, especially in exerting one-man rule, and claimed that present-day Communist leaders should be praised for having the courage to expose these.

"But the insults and abuse that are now being heaped upon Stalin." the Communist paper said, "are the work of the enemies of Communism and the Soviet Union."

Volkstimme, referring to printed reports that Khrushchev claimed Stalin had deserted be sieged Moscow, said:

"Naturally, Khrushchev never said anything like this, for the whole world knows that Stalin was in Moscow during the time of its greatest danger and made a great speech in Red Square on November 7, 1941, in which he predicted tine defeat of Hitler Fascism."

"It's quite natural that our opposing party doesn't want to see any appreciable accomplishments on our part at this sesently going to get."

Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas said last week the Senate had passed 412 bills in the first three months of the session, as compared with 140 in a comparable period of 1955. Most of them were of a minor nature.

The G.O.P. committee, in a monthly publication for party workers, accused Democrats of "stalling tactics" in connection with the new farm bill. In his successful bid for election in 1948, former President Truman chastized what he called the "do-nothing" Eightieth Congress, controlled by Republicans.

LOCAL CAR OWNERS SAVED 15% ON INSURANCE and got real protection and service with Liberty

Hundreds of thousands of car owners can tell you about the 15% savings (in the form of dividends) they've had year after year from Liberty Mutual. That's a healthy amount to save on car insurance - but, better still, it has come without sacrificing protection. Liberty tries to insure only careful drivers in order to save money for all policyholders. But Liberty's reputation also has been built on the way we stand by a policyholder if he has an accident. You just phone the nearest Liberty office - any hour, day or night. The Liberty claimsman shoulders your burden.

You can get this famous Liberty protection at 144 Liberty branches strategically located in the U.S. A., Canada and Hawaii, to give you fast, direct service.

JUST PHONE - YOU'RE SURE TO GET HELP. When you tell the Liberty claimsman about your accident, he takes over — does the things necessary to protect you against financial loss due to legal liability. The quicker you call the sooner Liberty Mutual shoulders your burden. accident, he takes over

MALENKOV TOURS AP BUREAU CHIEF EXPELLED BY RUSSIA

Richard K. O'Malley Accused of Illegal Currency Transactions.

Transactions.

STOCKHOLM, April 2 (AP)
—Richard K. O'Malley, Associated Press chief of bureau in Moscow, was given seven days to leave the Soviet Union after being charged with illegal currency transactions. He arrived in Stockholm yesterday.

O'Malley was called to the press department of the Soviet Foreign Office March 28. Leonid F. Ilylchev, chief of the Soviet press department, read the following statement to him:

"The Soviet criminal police have prepared charges against you of illegal currency transactions. This is a criminal offense punishable by a prison term. The Soviet government is not interested in seeing this case brought to trial. Therefore, you have seven days in which to leave the territory of the Soviet Union. This time will not be extended. I have nothing further to add."

O'Malley said Ilyichev declined to give details or specifications of the charges.

In New York, Frank Stazzel, general manager of the Asso-

In New York, Frank Starzel, general manager of the Associated Press, stated: general manager of the Associated Press, stated:

"We are confident that O'Malley did not engage in any financial transactions except those which are considered routine in Moscow and frequently cannot be avoided by the foreign resident. He is an exceptionally able and gifted reporter. His expulsion means losing the services of a man particularly competent to report on the Russian scene. I think it is also a loss for the Soviet, which presumably is interested in accurate and competent reporting of its news."

O'Malley has been chief of the Moscow bureau since Oct. 7, 1955. Previously he served Associated Press bureaus in where the second place, Miss Lou Ann Oberg, 7624 Genesta avenue, Garden-ville, and third place, a tie, Lamott, 3603 Forest Dale drive, Mehlville, and Ben F. today, pushing forward 50 to 75 cents to a practical top of $16 per cwt, highest in nearly six months. A few lots of meat type porkers reached $16.10 and $16.25.

Advancing 25 per cent since March 1, millions of dollars have been added to the quotable values of hogs on corn belt farms during the past month, according to Producers Livestock Marketing Association. The rise puts this important farm crop back on a paying basis, thus relieving some of the farmers cost-price squeeze.

The advance is attributed to The advance is attributed to smaller receipts and higher prices for fresh pork at wholesale centers. Prospects for the 1956 spring pig crop in nine corn belt states are reported to be 7 per cent below 1955.

Says 'Sincere' Christianity Expressed in Deeds Is Solution.

The New York Revaid Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Redio.

VATICAN CITY, April 2—
Pope Pius XII used his Easter sisted, was "sincere" Christian-sisted, was "sincere" Christian-VATICAN CITY, April 2—
Pope Pius XII used his Easter message here yesterday to pray for "light and strength" for the leaders of nations in the face of the "suicidal madness" of the atomic arms and guided missiles race.

The solution, the Pope insisted, was "sincere" Christianity expressed in deeds, and not merely a "vague, flabby and empty" Christianity half-believed and half-limited to "a mere human ethic of solidarity."
Christianity of that sort, he sidd, "far from supporting the church in the tremendous struggle... to safeguard... the of the "suicidal madness" of the atomic arms and guided missiles race.

The goal for which all nations should work, the 80-year-old Pope indicated, was "co-existence in truth, justice and love."

The Pope offered few suggestions on how each bloc under love. The Pope offered few suggestions on how each bloc under love. The Pope offered few suggestions on how each bloc under love. The love is the love of the spirit. The enemies of peace, the love said, are playing on the love is the love of the spirit.

The Pope offered few suggestions on how each bloc under present circumstances could be led to such an objective, but he warned against pessimism and against those who "threaten" one day and "cajole" the next, a clear reference to the Russians.

The Pope said he wanted to give his blessing to the peakeful uses of atomic energy but at the same time lamented the fact that each day is one more "melancholy step" on the road of the "homicidal, suicidal madness" of the atomic arms race. The long-range guided atomic missiles are another source of "alarm and terror" for the world, the Pope said.

"In order, then, that nations may be checked in this race towards the abyss, we once again raise our volce, asking for light and strength from the risen Christ for those who control the

Eisenhower Said to Promise Federal Control of Natural Gas Will Be Removed Next Year

Big Oil Operators Spreading the Word-He Vetoed Bill Lifting FPC Regulation of Industry Because of 'Arrogant' Lobbying.

WASHINGTON, April 2.

WASHINGTON, April 2.

ToP executives of leading oil and natural gas companies are quietly spreading the word that the Eisenhower's personal assurance that at the earliest opportunity next year the Administration will sponsor legislation taking natural gas out from under federal regulation.

tunity next year the Administration will sponsor legislation taking natural gas out from under federal regulation. The President in mid-February vetoed a measure which would have freed producers of natural gas from regulation by the Federal Power Commission. He said he was doing this because of the lobbying activities of "a very small segment" of the oil industry, although he was in accord with the "basic objectives" of the bill.

Texas Billionaires Angry.
Big oil operators, particularly the Texas billionaires who have been determined to get the Federal Government out of the picture, were indignant at the veto. They had waited a long time for this action after a Democratic President, Harry S. Truman, had vetoed a similar measure and Congress had failed to override the veto. But now the soothing assurance is being given that the Eisenhower veto shoul be regarded as merely a temporary setback and with the blessing of the White House the goal will be achieved early in 1957.

What this can mean in Republican campaign contributions is not hard to imagine. Thanks to a special provision of the income tax law granting them 27 per cent write-off for a "wasting asset," the oil billion at the veto. They had of the veto should be regarded as merely a temporary setback and with the blessing of the White House the goal will be achieved early in 1957.

What this can mean in Republican campaign contributions to a special provision of the income tax law granting them 27 per cent write-off for a "wasting asset," the oil billion adding which they would not otherwise be able to keep.

At about the time of the Eisenhower veto Republican campaign collectors were worrying because Texas contributions were complaining about the New Dealish aspects of the Adminis-

Uproar Over Gift to Case.

The revelation by Senator Francis Case (Rep.), South Dakota, that John M. Neff, lobbyist and lawyer for Superior Oil Co. of California, had offered him $2500 for his election campaign caused a great uproar. It opened a vista of big money used, as the President said in his veto message, with arrogant defiance to get the desired legislation. The ensuing Senate investigation was carefully circumscribed to the single incident and the larger significance of the Neff, offer has been lost sight of.

But it has served apparently of the Neff offer has been lost sight of.

But it has served apparently to intimidate small and middle-sized contributors. Sen at or Wayne Morse, who faces the stiffest battle for re-election of any member of House or Senate up this time, has a considerable deficit already in pre-campaign expenditures. To conduct a state-wide campaign with radio and television, he will have to have $250,000. Secretary of the Interior Douglas Mc-Kay, the likely Republican candidate although there is resentment that he should be the Administration's hand-picked diversed.

Downgrading of Stalin Started as Early as 1953 When Remark by Bulganin Shocked Diplomats

Deflation Made Implicit in Many Acts, Including Doctors' Release.

MARGUERITE HIGGINS

The New Tork Herald Thibune-Post-Dispetch Expectal Dispetch.
WASHINGTON, April 2.

S far back as midsummer 1953, Soviet. Premier Bulganin, who at the time was defense minister, startled Moscow's diplomatic colony by his unprecedently caustic comments about Joseph Stalin, who had died but a few months before.
Bulganin's remytable con-

died but a few months before.

Bulganin's remarkable conversation was with a Turkish diplomat to whom the Russian official confided that the Soviet Union no longer had any interest in the Turkish provinces to which Stalin had laid territorial claim.

The astonished Turk observed: "But Stalin appeared to attach great importance to those territories."

"Oh," replied Bulganin, "that was just one of the aberrations of Stalin's old age!"

Doctors Freed.

Doctors Freed. So the downgrading of Stalin is nothing new. It has been im-plicit in a multitude of acts of his successors. Only a few weeks after Stalin's death, for inafter Stain's death, for in-stance, the new regime set free the nine doctors whom Stalin-had accused of having murdered a high-ranking Soviet official, A. Zhdanov.

The nine Jewish doctors, who had been arrested in the anti-Semitic reign of terror that pre-ceded Stalin's death, were not only freed but the regime told the world that Stalin's charges only freed that Stalin's charges were false.

In the last few weeks, however, the downgrading of Stalin has been explicit. Although carefully balanced against his accomplishments, the charges against Stalin are being carefully spelled out not only to the Communists but to the world. It has been carefully planned. How else explain the fact that Soviet officials deliberately sought out the American Ambassador at a Moscow reception to pass on news of the anti-Stalin speech made by Commu-

But their bill has little or no chance to get out of the Senate Finance Committee to which it was referred. That committee, of which Senator Harry F. Stalin speech made by Commu-nist Party Boss Nikita S. Khrush-chev at the recent party con-Byrd of Virginia is chairman, is the citadel of resistance to any change in the existing order. It is a convenient graveyard where such measures as that sponsored by the four Republicans can rest in peace.

Why at This Time?

that sponsored by the four Republicans can rest in peace.

If the President has in fact given his assurance that he will send up natural gas legislation soon after he takes office for a second term, as the oil tycoons are claiming, then this is one of the best examples of having your cake and eating it too that Washington has seen in a long time. In his veto message the President tok a lofty tone saying he could not sign the gas bill until a thorough investigation of the activities of those pushing its passage had been carried out. He did not need to make reference to the well-known fact that it was furthered in both Senate and House by Democratic leaders. By implication it was their nefarious work and the President could enjoy a fine moral glow through his action.

Why at This Time?

The big question, of course, is why at this time it has been decided to take to the world stage to tear down the Stalin legend. After all, the regime could have gone on as before, evading the matter and blaming Stalin's police chief, Lavrenty P. Berla, for all past injustices. It would be convenient to think that his public expose of Stalin's abuse of personal power was a result or some momentous new internal difficulty. But despite a spate of published wishful thinking there is no evidence to bear out reports of past or future national crises in the U.S.S.R.

Most of these reports have in fact been based on a highly false premise: That Stalin enjoyed a general popularity inside Russia.

Stalin was feared—and despite his grisly methods—respected for his accomplishments. But this correspondent in seven months spent in the Soviet Union and in the course of traveling more than 17,000 miles in that country, never once met a Russian who expressed a feeling of warmth for the late dictator or even heard a simple expression of regret at his passing.

To the contrary it has been the almost universal experience of those who pass anytime in action.

This also comes under the head of shrewd politics. And having waited a long time already, the big oil men can be patient for another year, confident in the belief that their piece of cake will be duly delivered.

It is behind the new criminal code described by Soviet President Klementi Voroshilov and behind the abolition, in September 1953, of the MVD "special board" (it had the arbitrary power to arrest and try persons in secret).

It is behind Premier Bul-ganin's insistence that the So-viet constitution must become a reality rather than just a piece reality rather than just a piece of paper.

And the same motive is behind the admission of past injustices, including official murders of innocent men, and the rehabilitation of old Bolsheviks who started being let out of prisons within a few months of Stalin's death.

Theories Still Good.

It is significant that the Soviet leaders have for the most part narrowed their criticism of Stalin to his abuse of personal power or, to use Communist jargon, to his development of the "cult of personality as distinguished from the collective leadership" now practiced. Stalin's conomic theories—emphasis on heavy industry, farm collectivization—are in as good standing as ever.

Mr. Hoffa and a Headline

How a false impression can be created with a biased headline is illustrated by the continuing references in your letters column to James R. Hoffa, Teamster vice president, and his purported belief that "Small Business Must Go."

This was the wording of the headline, but the quoted remarks in the article say nothing of the kind. In analyzing the future economic situation, Hoffa was quoted as saying the plight of the small business is "unfortunate," and that "the little guy is going out of business—union or no union" because of inability to finance his operations.

Actually the 12,000 trucking concerns in the Midwest are all small businesses, to varying degrees. Hoffa and the Teamsters who deal with them every day have no desire to see them go out of business.

Your headline writer is guilty of gross misrepresentation, and at least a few of the readers are guilty of making headline judgments.

These fragile barracks buildings have, in recent weeks, withstood winds of tornado force, while substantial homes in surrounding subdivisions were severely damaged. I would only briefly mention that in the grossly exaggerated report "clouds of insects hovered over refuse cans." Could this be possible since the tour took place in midwinter? Shade of poetic license. Of prime importance is one fact. Over 900 familles are being housed here, a real accomplishment with to-Of prime importance is one fact. Over 900 families are being housed here, a real accomplishment with today's fantastic real estate values and rentals and with the ever-present "no children" stipulation in most places.

In this area, there are two fine schools—public and parochial — a beautiful, well attended church, a Legion post that recently won a national award for outstanding work in child welfare, a civic center with space for gym work and so on.

A group of men and women have devoted endless hours to provide supervised recreation for the children. Show me any other community of 900 plus who have done these things. I am proud to list these people as my friends. The families here are veterans—men who have served years, sacrificing the carning power necessary to provide their own homes. This housing project gives them the necessary breathing space required to accumulate the means with which to equip themselves with the attractive homes that they desire.

Has an effort been made to interest the Andabon Investment Co., which has been talking of building a 120-story building in Clayton, in the selection of a downtown location? If not downtown, perhaps Grand or Kingshighway.

Defense Cost Factors

The relative standings of the United States military forces and those of Soviet Russia have been laid in great detail before the House Ap-rig. Gen. Thomas R. Phillips (Ret.), the Post-Dispatch military analyst, summarizes this testimony as presenting "a grim picture of the growing industrial and military might of the Soviet Union." There was, he writes, "very little optimism in any of the testimony."

Since the testimony was taken in support of the Defense Department appropriations for the fiscal year 1957 it may be argued that the top men who are responsible for carrying out national defense policies certainly could be ex-pected to present as dark a picture as facts would permit. If they did so, the news developments of the past year seem to justify most of the strokes they used.

There is much evidence that Soviet Russian military might has been making swift progress in the scientific and industrial fields. Gen. Nathan Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, who has little of the showman about him, testified the Russians had "either overtaken us or can overtake us in all categories of warplane except the medium jet bomber."

Other military leaders, scientists, industrialists and Congressmen have been warning for several years that the Soviets were doing far better in science and technology than was generally realized. They now are attempting to leave the United States behind "by greatly increasing their research and development efforts," Gen. Twining testified.

The United States has been surprised several times since World War II by Soviet gains in military technology. Their progress in the atomic field is an old story. Their progress in aviation and in guided and ballistic missiles is more recent one. Trevor Gardner, who resigned in February as Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for Research and Development because of dissatisfaction with the missile program, read to the committee from a report signed last May 5 by a number of military and civilian officials, including Gen. James Doolittle:

During the time we have had responsibility for the Air Force research and development program, it is our strong impression that the Russians have moved a long way toward closing the gap between us.

Adm. Arleigh E. Burke, presenting the Navy's side, emphasized the 400 submarines that Russia now has. Since that is seven times the number the Nazis had in 1939, it is a significant fact to be weighed. If there is consolation in the fact the Allies' scientific progress in World War II led to defeat of the U-boats, it must not be forgotten that science works on the side marine, too, i.e., the snorkel and counter-If the world should ever see another major war, victory at sea might well go to the side that is ahead in nautical technology.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, speaking for the Army, said he felt 500,000 more men necessary to meet commitments. The Army, of course, is still smarting from the memory The Army, of economy cuts that left it in a weakened condition to enter the Korean war.

The fundamental question—the one which the House Appropriations Committee has to keep uppermost—is: What part of the nation's resources should be devoted to arms in order that the country will have reasonable safety and also the means of deterring any would-be world conquerers from starting a new world war?

The Chiefs of Staff and other Pentagon officials and some distinguished civilians have given their answers. Let us hope they were objective answers. If some were not, it is up to the House Appropriations Committee to be the first to do the correcting.

Thriving on Mystery

Both Senator McClellan and the Eisenhower Administration are rapidly getting themselves into a ridiculous position in the controversy over the allied embargo on export of strategic goods the allied embargo on export of strategic goods to the Soviet Union.

Senator McClellan and other members of his investigations subcommittee loudly demand "the facts" on such goods now being shipped to Russia by our allies, under revisions of the embargo agreed to by United States representatives. But when the committee is offered this information in closed session, it declines to receive it—which suggests that it may not be interested in the facts so much as in exploiting them publicly.

On the other hand the Administration must know quite well that any information handed to a congressional committee is not likely to remain secret very long, whether or not Senator McCarthy announces in advance his intention to break confidence. When certain facts must be classified for genuine reasons of national se-

When certain tacts must be classified for genuine reasons of national security, they are not ordinarily entrusted to congressional committees which in the nature of things may be as leaky as a sieve. This suggests that the facts about the trade embargo which the Administration wishes to keep confidential are not actually "classified" for security reasons. If this be so, why would not both the McClellan committee and the public have the facts? When the Administration agreed to let our allies ship certain hitherto banned goods to Ruspropriations Committee by the nation's top desia, it must have had persuasive reasons for fense authorities. The comparison is not a doing sp. Why not tell the country what those reasons were and what was done, and thus end a controversy that will only thrive on enforced

At the White House Level

One of the most obvious needs of the hour is meeting of state officials with federal authorities to discuss the problems of desegregation on a high and dignified level. About two months ago former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson proposed that President Eisenhower sponsor such a con-ference. Now Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida has called on the President to convene the Southern Governors and Attorneys General at the White House in an effort to see how race relations can be improved.

President Eisenhower's reply to Gov. Collins is that he made a suggestion for a congressional mission in his State of the Union message last January. The President points out that Congress has not yet acted, but goes on to say he hopes that it will.

If Congress did only what President Eisenhower proposed in his January message, not very much would be accomplished. He merely asked that a commission look into complaints that some citizens are being deprived of the right to vote in certain localities and are "being subjected to unwarranted economic pressures."
It would stretch the presidential recommendation a long way for it to include the trouble between Negro and white groups in the South and elsewhere over the unanimous Supreme Court decision outlawing racial segregation in public schools.

The President is right when he says that the responsibility lies primarily with state and local governments. But there is also a much larger national responsibility, too, and that is where Dwight D. Eisenhower comes in. The Stevenson-Collins proposal for a White House level conference is wholly reasonable. The proper officials ought to be invited to assemble as soon as possible. Relations have worsened in recent weeks and there is no more time to lose.

Benson Gets an Assignment

No puff adder can blow himself up to more frightful proportions than a United States Senator sputtering and hollering against Executive usurpation of legislative authority. The thunder crashes and lightning rends the sky when a President is found, or even alleged, to be trampling on the sacred precincts of congressional

But just look at what the conferees on the farm bill have done. Elaborating on a suggestion which originated in the Senate, they wrote into the law stern instructions for Secretary of Agriculture Benson to make a study of the food stamp plan for distribution of surplus food to the needy. They ordered him fiercely to report back to Congress in 90 days. If he determines that a food stamp plan is feasible, he is enjoined to submit recommendations for legislation to

If a study of the food stamp plan is called for, why doesn't Congress make it? If somebody has to decide the feasibility of this plan, which has been sponsored by Rep. Leonor Sullivan of Louis among others, why doesn't Congress decide? How can Congress, in all the majesty of its lawmaking authority, demand that a member of the Cabinet tell it how to make the laws?

There is a simple answer to these questions. Many congressmen cannot make up their minds on the food stamp plan; but, being under great pressure to help the farmer, they are ferocio determined to see that Secretary Benson makes up his. This is something to remember the next time a congressional leader gets up to complain about "dictatorship" from the Executive branch

A Sound Election Idea

Senator Neuberger of Oregon has proposed an amendment to the Johnson-Knowland cleanelections bill that makes good sense. The John son-Knowland bill is the watered-down affair substituted by the Senate leaders for the moderate yet effective bill offered by Senator Henof Missouri.

The Neuberger amendment would make the Government responsible for the full reporting of campaign expenditures, instead of leaving apliance with the law largely up to the candidates. Senator Neuberger would establish an Office of Election Campaign Expenditures the General Accounting Office to collect and check the figures. He feels that the General Acis farther removed from partisan politics than, say, the Department of Justice or some other cy under a partisan cabinet member.

If Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson and Republican Leader William Knowland really were interested in a fully effective campaign fund measure, they would welcome this sugges-tion. They would also have been for the Henbefore Election Day. Indeed, they would have backed the Hennings bill. But it is all too ap parent that what they really want is a reform bill for which Senators may vote with the feel ing that they are not making any serious sacriof financial support.

One of these days, however, the uninhibited oil lobbyists and politicians may force the Sen-ate to adopt a clean clean-elections law.

Got the Rock and Roll Blues

"Rock and roll" music, so dear to the hearts of teenagers as of even date, has come under attack in Alabama on—of all grounds!—the basis of racial prejudice. The leader of the Klan-like North Alabama White Citizens' Council, Asa Carter, says some "rock and roll" records are immoral and he is going to ask juke-box opera-tors to throw them out. A Dixieland band leader in Birmingham, Gerald Scott, says the songs

, . worse than be-bop or even hillbilly." Our authority on things musical, popular divi-on, tells us that "rock and roll" is simply fast blues, and is sometimes somewhat suggestive, occasionally perhaps a little more than somewhat, but no more so than many other songs in the popular genre that neither rock nor roll. We suspect, however, that Bandleader Scott is right when he says, "Teenagers don't know what the words mean. If they did, they couldn't stand them." The words of popular songs are seldom

The governing fact about the matter, however, is that teenagers love this wretched cater-wauling; and if they love it, it is going to stay until, in their own good time, they move on to a taste for something that sounds worse. Mr. Carter can put that in his pipe and swallow it. "Rock and roll" music, predict we, will roll to the punch,

President Logan Wilson, a capable administrator caught in the crossfire, has shuttled the issue off to the Texas Student Publications board, which recently upheld the Daily Texan's right to discuss state and national issues.

The preponderance of censored col-lege papers is an affront to the dignity of the nation. The "kept" ones pour into our office from all corners of the land, speaking their tongueless idiom.

They hide their shame by imploring students to turn over a new leaf at the start of a semester, give blood to a blood drive, support the football team, use their leisure more wisely, collect wood for a bonfire.

They are by all rights dead, victims of educational hypocrisy and their meaningless editorials tear young men's guts with a frustration they cannot

I have lived with this stifling conformity on my own campus, and I have been frightened by it. The desire here to side with the majority has never been more manifest. One sees it everywhere: in the classroom, the coffee session, the committee meeting, the Greek ledge.

sion, the committee meeting, the Greek lodge.

As a consequence we are turning out accomplished nonentities.

A silent press is the manifestation of a silent age, and I have no other honest choice than to set the newspaper that is briefly mine against the tenuous fabric of national, institutional and personal conformity.

The sporadic reactions, as seen in my fellow students' defense of press freedom, provide a foundation of hope.

I believe that on the campuses of our universities and colleges, traditional guardians of our basic liberties, must be found the solution to the dilemma that faces the American as he moves closer and closer toward collective security and farther from individual responsibility.

In the history of the Jews, the Biblical episode of the Goshen ghetto was merely the forerunner of events that are making headlines still in 1956. The act of smiting Hebrews has been a leitmotif of history, culminating in the horrors of Dachau and Auschwitz. Its repetition down the ages has, in fact, been descriptive of the Jews as a people to whom history happened, rather than a people who made their own.

The general strategy of this group is to forget the South as probably a losi province and build a campaign about the interests of big urban areas with stress on labor and civil rights issues and, coupled with this, to appeal to disgruntled farmers. But in spite of these and other highlights the show as a whole is weak, perhaps one of the most uneven group displays held at the guild in several years. At a time when out-of-town contests are effecting large gruntled farmers.

Rail Magnate's Son Created Riviera Resort—Income Put at $115,000 a Day.

JUAN-LES-PINS, France April 2 (AP)-American railroad heir Frank Jay Gould, who created the Riviera resort of Juan-les-Pins, is dead.

Death came on the dawn of Easter for the 78-year-old expatriate who inherited $10,000,-000 and whose financial astuteness gave him an income estimated by some of his friends at $115,000 a day. His exact fortune was not known.

Gould died at his Villa "Soleil d'Or" (Golden Sun) where he had been almost a recluse for many years. He had been bedridden since 1954. Uremia was given as the cause of death.

His wife, Florence, was at his side when the end came. He had been married twice before. Gould was known as the "sad millionaire" among residents of Juan -les-Pins who seldom saw him. Despite his tremendous wealth he lived quietly and was cared for by a single servant.

Gould was the youngest son of railroad magnate Jay Gould. He entered the railway business in 1897 and his holdings spread. He was credited with building up the Virginia railway and power system which became the Virginia Electric & Power Co. Mr. Moses died here 'yesterday from cancer at the age of 59. A veteran of more than 40 years experience in the coal business, Mr. Moses bargained with Lewis on a "Harry" and "John" basis.

For decades mine owners and Lewis's United Mine Workers union had squared off annually—sometimes several times a year—in strikes.

Mr. Moses ended the classic conflict in 1950 by forming the Bituminous Coal Operators Association with himself as president. After 1950, Mr. Moses and Lewis fought out their battles in private, between themselves and without strikes. They simply announced the result and everybody accepted it.

Mr. Moses's death came on the April 1 date which, years ago, had signaled the start of many coal strikes. It also came on the day when a new 80-cent daily wage boost for miners went into effect as the second phase of a $2-a-day pay increase which Mr. Moses had negotiated with Lewis last year.

Worms and People.

New York, April 2.

New York, April 2.

Now comes the time when intelligent worms go underground because, with the trout season open, there is danger of being plucked away from home and loved ones, skewered on a hook and flung into the bitter, numbing cold of a mountain brook. This is bad for worms.

As a matter of fact, opening day in the north temperate zone was bad for all forms of life with the sense they were born with, which necessarily excludes fishermen who go fishing on opening day. Files and bugs have the foresight not to get hatched until later. No self-respecting tadpole would be found dead in a stream this early in the year. Only man quits dry land by his own choice, floundering through the rapids in leaky waders, trying to cast with ice clogging the guides on the rod, making himself as wretched as he deserves to be.

To the trout fisherman.

To the trout fisherman, opening day is bilss bentified because it offers all the concentrated and undefiled misery without which no dedicated angler can be happy.

dedicated angler can be happy.

The fish have no choice. Restocking programs cause them to be dumped willy-nilly into the water where, having no feet to walk out on, they must remain. They resent it. Sullen and mutinous, they sulk in the eddies, sending back the breakfast tray untouched. This has led to a popular notion that trout and bears don't feed in cold weather, a theory not necesweather, a theory not neces-sarily refuted by this tale of last November.

Ides of November.

Ides of November.

The October floods had ravaged Connecticut and subsided when a small boy approached his father and asked: "Can I go fishing?" "Fishing?" his father said, "with what?"

The nipper opened a grimy fist to reveal two or three sluggishly squirming worms. Gently, the parent assured him there couldn't possibly be any fish in the brook down the lane. The stream was never overpopulated at best, and the great flood had swept everything before it—boulders, bridges, trees. The man himself had seen several dead fish, forlorn survivors of last

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. April 2-The National League season opens two weeks from tomorrow, but Fred Hutchinson, the Cardinals' new manager, still is uncertain about his starting players at three position first base, shortstop and left field.

"I'll put it this way," the 27-year-old former American League pitcher and pilot said. "I've got an idea at each position, but I still could change my mind at any one or all three."

Hutchinson injected a mild surprise when he disclosed that he still considered Wally Moon as a possible left field candidate as well as at first base, the position to which Moon was switched late last season and which he has played without exception ever since.

"I'm not saying Moon will

"I'm not saying Moon will play left field," the manager emphasized, "but only that he's in the picture there as well as at first."

The Cardinals are set, barring a trade or unexpected development, at five positions. Red Schoendienst at second base, Ken Boyer at third and Bill Virdon and Stan Musial in the outfield are certain to start. And, as mentioned a week ago, Bill Sarni will be No. 1 behind the plate.

Thereafter, it's a problem of whether to use Moon, Tom Alston or Joe Cunningham at first base, Alex Grammas or Dick Schofield at shortstop and either Rip Repulski, Jackie Brandt or Moon in the third outfield position. It would be left field for Repulski or Moon, but right for the strong-armed Brandt, with Musial moving to left, if Hutchinson decided to gamble on the 21-year-old International League rookie-of-the-year.

The temperature was a frigid 20 degrees when the trout fishing season opened at Montour Falls, N.Y., Sunday. THERE is, of course, a first time for everything and everybody and on that premise we take you now to Augusta, Ga., where on Thursday, they'll start play in the twentieth Masters golf tournament, first won by Horton Smith back in 1934.

How many more "firsts" are possible? Well, Lloyd Mangrum never has won. Once he was second. Three times he was third. Eleven times he was among the bona-fide leaders, with victory hanging on two or three shots. It's the only name-prize in golf that Mangrum never has annexed.

Will an amateur finally finfish first? There are few amateurs of any distinction left in the game. Even Frank Stranahan, who always will know where his next meal is coming from, has turned pro.
Billy Joe Patton and Harvie Ward are probably the best of the guys playing for salad bowls and they have a fighting chance. Patton almost made it in 1954, finishing behind Ben Hogan and Sam Snead who had to play off a regulation tie.
Can either Snead or Jim Demaret win the Masters for the fourth time? Nobody ever has, Maybe nobody will. It's that kind of a tournament!

Can Middlecoff Repeat? W HAT about Cary Mid-diecoff, the golfing den-tist who spread-eagled the field in 1955? Could he become the first champion to repeat? His triumph a year ago launched him on the most successful tournament crusade of his career and right now he'd have to be favored to make it two to be favored to make it two in a row.

This will be Jack Fleck's first Masters. He qualified by winning the U. S. Open at Frisco last June and, altogether he has done nothing since, he's automatically eligible for this blue-ribbon affair and will be there. They will come to the Masters, old and young, because this is the throne-room of golf's farflung empire. This is where Bobby Jones, emperor emeritus, presides each spring in a bower of dogwood and azaleas.

It Can Be Painful.

THERE'S something about the Masters layout that never ceases to intrigue the contestants, whether they've been around it 100 times or only once or twice. They don't particularly refer to it as a tough course.

"Painful," was the way Middlecoff described it one day, "It can be very painful." It is a montage of hills and vales and labyrinthian greens where the flags may be so hidden they appear to be flying at half-mast.

Maybe one of the younger professionals will finally get himself straightened away for this Masters and wrest control from the older generation. Gene Littler made his Augusta debut in '54 and got off to a ragged 79 for the first 18 holes.

But he still finished with 299, which wasn't too bad a score considering he was virtually left at the post.

Mike Souchak, the former football player, shot a 289 last April to finish in fourth place and he's been one of the steady money-earners on the

"But it seems to threaten you. Or maybe we're also playing tradition or something."

Wouldn't it be quite a take if Fleck should find his game again or if Patton could be fitted for the green jacket which is the mantle of those who win the masters.

"I'm going to play there until I win," promised Billy Joe a year ago. And he sounded like a man of his word.

SPORTS Four Top-Seeded Teams Gain District Soccer Semifinals

Simpkins, Spaniards Triumph

By Dent McSkimming By Dent McSkimming
Just as officers of the District soccer championship tournament expected, Kutis, St. Ambrose, Spanish Club and Simpkins have reached the semifinal round. That was as far as the tournament directors were asked to go when they made the draw, more than a month ago.
They looked over the entry list of 16 clubs and agreed that,
to insure a well-balanced semifinal the four teams named above should be seeded, Kutis at the top, Simpkins at the bottom and the other two in the middle.
Only one of the four had a

Only one of the four had a close call. Spanish Club was carried to overtime to beat the Craigs, 2-1, in the first round, Craigs, 2-1, in the first round, then yesterday, in the first stream of the doubleheader at Fairground, the Spaniards squeezed past Carondelet, 1-0. Ambrose has a goal advantage of 9-1 in winning two games; Kutis is likewise 9-1. Simpkins, with an 8-1 triumph over Sacred Heart yesterday, tops them all with a bulge of 13-2.

So, next Sunday's round should be the most interesting of the tourney. It will consist of a first game between Kutis and St. Ambrose, and a second game between Spanish Ciub and Simpkins. The final is to be played April 15.

4 Goals for Galimberti.

Simpkins. The final is to be played April 15.

4 Goals for Galimberti.
Scoring honors in this fifth week's play went to Tony Arias, whose single goal brought victory for the Spanish Club, and to twe Simpkins players, John Galimberti with four goals and Dean Wilson with three. Wilson thus ties Don Dallas in the cumulative scoring, each having five for the series.

There was marked contrast in the two games. Keen competition between two well-matched clubs did not bring out good soccer as the Spanish eliub and Carondelet went at their task with grim purpose.

But, in the second game, Father Bernie Huhn's confident Sacred Heart lads raised the caliber of their game several notches as they tried to spring a surprise on the Simpkins. In the end, it was the greater goal-productive capacity of Wilson and Galimberti that changed the even-up first-half struggle into a second-half rout.

Wilson's opening score, five minutes after the start, was the even-up first-half struggle into a second-half rout.

Wilson's opening score, five minutes after the start, was made from a surprisingly sharp angle. The ball was scarcely a foot from the goal line when he blasted it between a surprised goalie. Ed Fisher, and the post. Then two penalties, called for fillegal ball handling, gave Galimberti two points. Greek-born Pantells Mezinis, subbing at outside right, worked hard and cleverly to score and Simpkins led, 4-0, at half time. In that period, the work of center halfback Bob Gronnemeyer and Left Half Ron Lieblier was equal to that of any meyer and Left Half Ron Lieb-lier was equal to that of any Simpkins player. But it was tiring work, and both slowed down in the difficult second half. A smoothly executed goal by Center Forward Tom Fitz-simmons made the score to 4-1, and gave Sacred Heart new hope, but a strong contrary breeze, which kicked up dust clouds worked in favor of the much sturdier Simpkins. In ad-dition to two more goals by much sturdier Simpkins. In addition to two more goals by Galimberti and two by Wilson, Simpkins forwards rattled a number of shots off the posts.

It was a good game to put the Simpkins on edge for their semifinal.

busy with throw-ins. Spectators feit the ball was out of play more than on the field. The cross-field wind took every high ball for a ride.

Goalie Ed Baumgartner's unsure handling of shots and crosses put Carondelet in several tight spots before Arias finally got the only goal of the game. It was after 23 minutes of the second half that he got his chance. Then, he had to win a long race from Center Halfback Chick Pfeil to get close enough to unleash a terrific right-foot blast that completely baffled Baumgartner.

Goalies had a comparatively easy time of it as neither side seemed to have a scoring punch. Manuel (Bloho) Muniz blocked a few, but most of them were right at him. And that's the factor that reduces the Spanish Club's chances of success against Simpkins next Sunday. There will be too great a discrepancy in scoring power.

Golfer Builds Fire to Save a Stroke

When he found a wade of paper obstructing his ball near the fifth green in the Azalea Open tourney, WALTER BURKE-MO resorted to fire. He is shown putting a match to the paper which burned so that he could easily remove it without disturbing his ball, thereby saving a precious stroke. He then made a successful chip and sank a 3-foot putt for a par 3.

He finished up with a 280 score, seven strokes behind the $2200 first prize winner, Mike Souchak.

Maxwell. Ed Furgol of St. Louis, former national open champion, finished with 283, good for $150. He had rounds of 70, 23, 69 and 71. Mike said earlier in the tournament that his putting was better than it had been in six weeks, and the trusty putter eame to his rescue before that final hole birdie. On the fourteenth he rolled one in from 50 feet for an eagle two after a mighty drive reached to the tringe of the green on the 310-yard hole. He also dropped a 6-footed on the ninth for a birdie to keep ahead of Mayer as each turned in 33. Souchak finished in a tie for fourth last year in the Masters in his first try at the big one as a professional. Mayer, who rested until the Rises as Collegians Break American and World Marks

The suspension was given McGee because routine chemical tests turned up caffeine in the horse, Morning After, which he handled, after it won the sixth race at Bowie March 16.

The commission made the suspension effective beginning yesterday. It will be honored by all tracks in the nation which belong to the Thoroughbred Racing Association.

McGee also was stripped of privileges at Maryland tracks. The Round Tablers have a lot of gags left but not nearly as much money as in the heyday of slot machines when members spent thousands to pull the handles and the officers gave it away.

Joseph A. Albi, 63, a prominent Spokane attorney and the only president the club has even had, said the A.R.T. has spent more than $1,500,000 to promote sports and nonsense.

The A.R.T. once had 30 slot machines in its cramped quarters in a hotel basement and people lined up to play. The State Supreme Court outlawed the machines in 1952, however, and the lavish giveaways of old are over.

The golf course, called the "Esmeralda" after the A.R.T.'s wooden horse mascot, is a tough, 6077-yard layout with a para 35-36—71 in the northesst section of town. The A.R.T. says it has an appraised value of $20,000.

Coach Paul D. (Tony) Hinkle, head of the group which last week outlawed the "tip-in" goal, said there is considerable sentiment against the rule which gives a player a second shot for making his first free throw. There is a need to do away with "cheap" points, he said.

In Event of Stalemate Mayor d'Alesandro May Touch Off 'Are You For Stu?' Boom.

BALTIMORE, April 2 (AP)-A Maryland drive for Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri for the Democratic presidential nomination will be touched off if the front runners come to a if the front runners come to a stalemate.

Mayor Thomas d'Alesandro of Baltimore, the state's Democratic national committeeman, is spearheading an "Are You For Stu?" move.

Nothing may come of it if Adiai Stevenson or Estes Kefauver gets so far out ahead as to be assured of the nomination. But if a deadlock develops, d'Alesandro expects to be in the forefront in pressing for Symington, a former Maryland resident who already has been indorsed by the Missouri Democratic State Committee.

"I have a feeling in my bones that Symington is going to be the nominee." D'Alesandro told a reported.

"Second Chaice' of Many

"Second Choice' of Many.

Symington has said he is not a candidate, but D'Alesandro contends there is considerable quiet sentiment for him. The Mayor argues also that the Senator is the "second choice" of many now committed to other candidates and that they would jump to him if their own candidates faitered.

D'Alesandro is rated by political friends and foes alike as an astute politician. A former Representative, he has won 22 consecutive primary or election contests and never has been defeated.

Ironically for D'Alesandro, he may be forced to vote for Kefauver—on the first ballot at least—at the Democratic national convention.

The Mayor said the state's Democratic leaders had hoped the delegation would go to the national convention uninstructed, but Kefauver filed in the May 7 primary and is unopposed.

Primary voters can choose either Kefauver, with the result binding on the delegation or can vote for an uninstructed delegation.

An uninstructed delegation must cast at least one ballot for the primary winner and supposedly must stay with him as long as he has a reasonable chance to win. There could be disagreement on what constitutes a reasonable chance.

Republican Picture.

President Eisenhower is the only candidate in the Republican presidential primary. He carried Maryland in 1952 by 104,000 votes.

Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin, who nominated Mr. Eisenhower at the 1952 convention, predictis the President Will do even better this time. McKeldin's close supporters do not believe that Mr. Eisenhower's recent statement that he would be happy to have Nixon on the ticket with him rules out the possibility he might also be happy with some other running mate. orimary contest for the party's icenatorial nomination.

They are Millard E. Tydings, a senator for 24 years until upset in the 1950 election, and George P. Mahoney, a conractor and former state racing commissioner, who has lost out by hairbreadth margins in three previous tries for major office. The winner will oppose Republican Senator Marshall Butter, the 1950 victor over Tydings.

> Peiping Receiving Industrial Equipment-West Germany Steps Up Exports.

The New York Herald Tribuns-Post-Dispatch special Radio.

BONN, April 2—East Gerany is emerging as a supplier of industrial equipment to Com-munist China. West Germany is also increasing its trade with

The East German regime has a direct trade accord with Red China. It is selling the Chinese numerous types of industrial equipment which the American - sponsored strategic goods embargo makes it difficult for Western nations to export to Peiping.

For example, the 1956 trade pact between the East Germans and China provides for the East Germans to deliver a number of complete industrial plants of complete industrial plants of unspecified types, machine tools, railway and other transportation equipment, chemicals, optical and precision instruments and electrical equipment. In return, the Chinese are to deliver industrial metals and minerals, textiles and a wide variety of food.

East German officials have announced that Chinese government buyers at the Leipzig Fair last month gave orders under the trade accord for East German industrial equipment with a ruble value nominally equivalent to about $160,000,000.

The West Germans, in turn, have increased their trade with Communist China from about $58,000,000 in 1955.

This development was recently indorsed by Walter Hallstein, Chancellor Adenauer's secretary of state for foreign affairs, in an address to the East Asia Union in Hamburg. The East Asia Union is a powerful business association, many of whose members are keenly interested in expanding the Bonn Republic's trade with the Chinese mainland.

AIR FORCE PLANS BIGIDAHO RUNWAY FRENCH TROOPS FOR ATOM PLANES

WASHINGTON, April 2 (UP)
—The Air Force plans to build a giant runway, probably the longest in the nation, for testing an atomic-powered plane at the national reactor testing station near Idaho Falls, Idaho, it was learned today.

The House has passed and sent to the Senate a $11,400,000 authorization to start the project. The sum is included in a two billion dollar military construction authorization.

Informed sources said the isolated Idaho Falls area, with its sparsely populated mountainous and desert terrain, is considered ideal for testing the atomic plane. An accident conceivably might spew heavy radiation over the scene of a crash.

radiation over the scene of a crash.

The Air Force, in conjunction with Convair, has been flying an atomic reactor in a B-36 over Texas to test problems of shielding and radiation. But the reactor has not been operated during take-offs or landings.

Informed sources said the runway will be 15,000 feet or longer, about three miles. It will be used not only for take-offs and landings, but for working on problems of taxing the atomic-powered craft on the ground. French troops dropped by helicopters clashed with Algerian rebels near Bone Saturday night. The French claimed 47 rebels were killed.

In Casabianca, Abd el Krim Benabdallah, a leader of the Communist party, was shot to death. ADVERTISEMENT regularity!

Medical evidence finally promises you thorough, safe, natural relief from that miserable, sickening feeling of irregularity! Leading doctors in a prominent medical center have just finished testing 7 popular, well-known laxatives. These are the facts based on clinical records of 261 patients, from 11 to 87 years old, suffering from acute and chronic constipation:

DR. EDWARDS' OLIVE TABLETS.

DR. EDWARDS' OLIVE TABLETS, nade from pure-vegetable irugs and plant herbs, gave thorough, gentle, effective results in 9 out of 10 cases! OLIVE TABLETS were 58% more effective—with less unpleasant effects—than all the other lax-effects—what less dispeasant effects—than all the other laxatives tested!

The doctors found, too, that olive tablets function naturally, work only on digested food in the lower bowel, without causing undue weakness or removing nourishment that your body needs. They're unsurpassed as a laxative for temporary constipation. Sold by all druggists.

A timely report on...

The importance of sugar

...in family meals

...in reducing diets

Nutritional findings show that your need for nature's own sweetener is as deepseated as the human body's need for energy

20 Miles Although sugar has been extracted another plants and used by man as one of his most valued foods for thousands of years, scientially appreciate the important role sugar plays in the life proces This amazing substance, which has been called "the basis of all life" is formed only by the action of sunlight on growing green plants. It is as basic as air and water, from which it is formed.

Most efficient source of energy

But supposing sugar had just been discovered. What important and newsworthy things could be said about it! Everyone would soon find out "here is something that tastes good and makes other good foods taste better." But the scientists would be as sure to add "sugar offers far more than mere sweetness." It is the most efficient source of energy that can be used by the human body.

It is absorbed into the bloodstream almost instantly, starts to relieve fatigue within minutes after it is eaten.

It helps every cell in the body to function more efficiently. It helps supply the power needed for every action, every heartbeat, and every life

Sugar can be used generously as part of the normal, well-balanced diet by all healthy people. But it has a special value to those who have a tendency to over-

Helps control an oversize appetite

A level teaspoonful of sugar supplies only 18 calories, yet satisfies appetite faster than any other food. Faster even than larger portions of many other foods that supply far more calories.

When you use sugar in a between-meal "Scientific Nibbie" it takes the edge off your hunger, helps to overcome one of the chief causes of overweight -overeating.

At the same time it helps to relieve the tiredness and fatigue that slows you down. Thus it gets at the other chief cause of overweight-underactivity.

Sugar is also used by the body to help burn its own fat.

Nature's way to weight control

Because your appetite is actually your body's call for quick energy, your blood sugar level plays a part in the healthy body's own automatic weight control system. By its effect on appetite it helps to match the number of calories taken in as food with the number used up in the course of the day's activity.

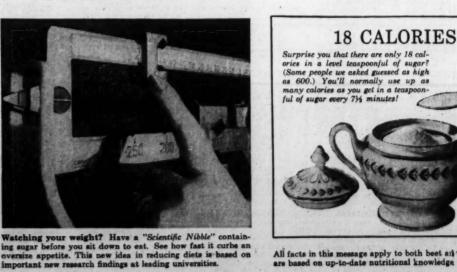

This helps to explain why most people can eat pounds. Calories that are spent as energy can never be deposited as fat.

It also helps to explain why the use of artificial sweeteners, originally prescribed for diabetics only, are of no real value in reducing diets. Since they supply no energy they only appease the sense of taste without helping to satisfy the appetite.

Sugar is neither a "reducing food" nor a "fattening food." There are no such things. All foods supply calories and there is no difference between the calories that come from sugar or steak or grapefruit or ice cream. But in these days when diet fads and diet foods have become big business, it is good to be reminded again of these basic facts about one of our most basic-and best liked-foods.

Sugar makes any well-planned, well-balanced diet more satisfying and more enjoyable.

The Office of Defense Mobilrtion has authorized the version to industry this onth of an additional 1,000,000 month of an additional 1,000,000 pounds of nickel previously scheduled for delivery to the Government. The diversion, intended to provide relief for commercial users from the current nickel shortage, brings the planned diversions for the April-June quarter to 20,500,000 pounds. Military demand for nickel will be larger this month, ODM said; therefore, industry will need additional stocks even though the second stocks even though the second quarter diversions originally announced were substantially greater than in the quarter just ended. The nation's steel mills are scheduled to operate this week at 99.1 per cent of capacity for an indicated output of 2,439,000 tons, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported. This compares with actual production of 2,452,000 of ingots and steel for castings last week, when the industry operated at 99.6 per cent of capacity.—(A.P.) The American Collectors

The American Collectors Assn., Inc., at Minneapolis announced today that its collection index, a measure of the collectibility of overdue accounts throughout the country, dropped from 89.7 in December to 88.2 in March. The collectibility of past due accounts lectibility of past due accounts represents one of the most sen represents one of the most sensitive barometers of business activity, the association said. People are in a relatively stronger financial position, it said. A year ago, the index dropped from 91.5 in December 1954, to 79.1 in March 1935, (UP).

The Association of American Railroads estimated that second quarter rail freight volume will be about 5.2 per cent above the high period a year ago. The estimate was based on forecasts by 13 regional shippers advisory boards scattered across the country. Each of the regional boards foresaw greater volume except that for the Great Lakes region which estimated a 0.2 per cent decline. If the forecasts are borne out, the April-May-June loadings this year will be 7.795,059 cars, compared with loadings of 7.410,152 cars in the second quarter of 1935. (AP).

International Telephone & Telegraph Corp, reported its net income for 1955 rose to $23,070,327, equal to $3.21 a share from $20,068,525 or $2.80

MARRIAGE CYCLES IN THE ECONOMY

By J. A. Livingston-

PUT THESE TIDBITS in your non-electronic brain. Aluminum prices go up here, while copper prices prices go up here, while copper prices slump in London.

Auto production is down some 20 per cent from a year ago, but the boom in steel persists. Consumers remain optimistic they're going to buy lots of things, says the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan—but snow, rain, and chill gave spring and department store sales at certain points a pre-Easter mauling. Thus, Theodore V. Houser, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., notes that instalment customers are paying off instalment debt faster than they're making new purchases.

Roebuck & Co., notes that instalment customers are paying off instalment debt faster than they're making new purchases.

Looks kind of like a standoff — as if business weren't getting anywhere. So why should Secretary of Commerce Sinciair Weeks hold out the promise that 1956 will top any previous year?

It's biological. Not Secretary Weeks' biology. But the vital statistics—the vital statistics—the vital statistics of the 'thirties.

They're about to produce big economic dividends—more and more marriages—this year, the next, and the year after. These marriages will generate sales of new homes, automobiles, carpeting, home furnishings—all the things that follow in the train of bridal veils and Mendissohn's music. And let's not omit the layettes, cribs, and diaper services.

You can see it already. In 1955, 1,524,000 brides went to the altar. This was the first significant increase since 1950, when the Korean war gave clerks at marriage-license bureaus an unexpected rush of business. The all-time bumper crop of double "1-do's' occurred in 1946, immediately after the war: 2,291,000.

The war had "stored up" marriages even as it stored up demand for new homes, automobiles, and some doleful department of the war: 2,291,000.

The war had "stored up" marriages even as it stored up demand for new homes, automobiles, and some doleful department of the war: 2,291,000.

The war had "stored up" arriages even as it stored up demand for new homes, automobiles, and some doleful department of the war 2,291,000. boom.

Unexhausted Prosperity
A new upturn in marriages has begun. The jiggles in prices, the layoffs in automobiles, and some doleful department store sales this spring are subordinate ripples. As Ralph J. Cordiner, president of General Electric Co., recently noted: "We've got to forsee the needs of tomorrow and not be preoccupied with day-to-day barometers."

That's why American corporations are spending freely on new plant and equipment, why home-builders are confident, why investment specialists are looking around for companies with a baby angle—companies that make school desks, play equipment, textbooks, children's books, baby carriages. The marriage curve has turned around. In short, we're out of the birthrate valley of the 'thirties. We're out of the arriages trough of the early 'lifties, Which suggests that prosperity's unexhausted, that it still has further to go.

The war had "stored up" marriages even as it stored up demand for new homes, automobiles, etc. After 1946, the number of marriages tended to alip back to "normal," more closely in line with the number of persons coming of marriageable age. Now the trend ought to shift again—from down to up.

The Great Depression tells the story. Those were the days of economic discouragement. People hesitated to get married or to have children. Bring babies into the world to face unemployment! No, thank you!

CHICAGO, April 2 (AP)—
Grain futures contracts pushed generally higher on the board of trade today.

Even wheat futures, after some erratic movement in a narrow range on advices of both showers and continuing wind erosion in the southwest, scored gains of one cent or more, with quotations for May delivery strengthening at the close.

Soybeans paced the market on predictions of a somewhat tighter supply of edible oils than expected.

MERCHANTE EXCHANGE, April 2—Grain futures range:

IN SCHOOL YEAR

Military Says It Shortened Term in European System to Offset Deficit.

FRANKFURT, Germany, April 2 (AP)—American parents and teachers in Europe are waging a running battle with the United States Army. They claim the Army is not giving the children enough education. The Army says it is.

The Army operates 94 elementary schools and 14 high schools in Germany and France for 27,200 children—sons and daughters of the 250,000 United States troops stationed in Europe.

The fight started when the Army announced it was lopping 12 days off the 180-day elementary school calendar and eight days off the high school calendar and eight days off the high school calendar as one means of offsetting a $560,000 deficit in the school budget. Shortening the school year, the Army said, would result in savings of $120,000 in teachers' salaries alone. Other cuts were ordered elsewhere in the school budget to compensate for the deficit.

Teachers and parents sent up a howl. They protested to Army headquarters in Heidelberg. They fired off cables to Senators, Congressmen and to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

The Army said it "made every effort" to get funds elsewhere fense 'Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

The Army said it "made every effort" to get funds elsewhere to counter the deficit, but without success. A spokesman said the Department of the Army in Washington was asked to boost the per pupil allowance from $231 to $240 but the request was turned down.

"The educational program of our children is seriously undermined" by shortening the school year, Frankfurt parents said in a letter to Army headquarters.

"Our children will receive credit of only 168 days, which is below the Army's established minimum requirement."

172-Day Minimum.

The Army minimum for elementary and high school pupils is 172 days. Last year, the schools ran for 180 days. The new order would bring the number of elementary school days to 168, the high school to 172.

An Army spokesman said that days to 168, the high school to 172.

An Army spokesman said that "it is not considered that the reduction of four days below the minimum could adversely affect the elementary pupils."

The teachers differed. "The reduction of the school calendar is educationally unsound," they said in protest letters. The teachers also claimed the Army's move was "discriminatory."

"Forced to Take Loss."

Miss Mary Hoague, of Cambridge, Mass., chairman of the teachers' organization, said, "We are being arbitrarily forced to take a financial loss."

Miss Hoague, a first grade teacher in Frankfurt, is spokesman for 1400 elementary and high school teachers in France and Germany.

The Army said the deficit in the school budget arose primarily because a 7½ per cent pay increase for teachers came after the current school budget was prepared.

There has been no complaint from the school kids—none at all.

The New Approach to Writing TV Comedy

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, April 2 HAL KANTER, who has been writing comedy for more years than he likes to think about and is now the writer, producer of, and chief genius behind the George Gobel show, was talking about what the years have done to his terribly spe-cialized and difficult convinced the audience didn't either. "Today we delve into minute areas of humor. The feeling used to be that the topic had to be as broad as possible in order to reach everybody. So we'd make jokes about Hedy LaMarr. Now the comedy is likely to revolve around the window shade in the bathroom. The basic common denominator we've discovered is not jokes about movie stars but the little things everyone knows about.

"You don't hear many jokes about Bing's horses any here. The day of the gag man is going or maybe it's already gone. A comedy writer must be a critic who can write about anything, who can see life in perspective. He can't be bound by a table at Lindy's."

* * * S KANTER POINTED OUT, it's got to the po AS KANTER POINTED OUT, it's got to the point where the best comedy writers are pretty nearly the best writers. This makes them pretty hard to hang onto since they move on to other things. After all, Herman Wouk was once a gag writer for Fred Allen. So was Harry Tugend, who later was head of production at Paramount Pictures. George Axelrod served his apprenticeship as a gag writer before writing "Seven Year Itch." And Kanter himself in addition to writing the Gobel show also writes screenplays, one of them being "The Rose Tattoo."

"I get more money for writing the Gobel show than I did for 'Rose Tattoo' but I'm prouder of 'Tattoo.' Your ego gets you into things like that," he said.

"I get more money for writing the Gobel show than I did for 'Rose Tattoo' but I'm prouder of "Tattoo.' Your ego gets you into things like that," he said.

THE SEARCH for new comedy writers is unending but it is yielding results. NBC has a comedy development plan which is bringing new young writers to Hollywood from all over the country. Kanter thinks many of these young men are very good writers indeed. "It's healthy for all of us because these kids all bring in their own point of view which is just a little different from ours," he said. "The job is harder for the new writers than it was when we broke in because we have made it harder. Television has had a healthy effect on the whole entertainment business. We all know that it has driven the movies to higher ground, but not too many of us realise that television has driven itself to higher ground. The things that were successful a few years ago just won't work today. "For instance the comedy Hour tried to revive what they called comedy classics from earlier shows. They creaked with age. I think some of Sid Caesar's early routines might be revived, but you can bet that Caesar would do them differently today. The routines would have to be redone and updated."

COMEDY WRITERS are still plagued with censorship which frequently drives them out of their wits. For instance, Gobel is asked to do public service announcements from time to time and Kanter likes to keep these in tune with the Gobel personality. A safe driving campaign was plugged by Gobel as follows: "Ladies and gentlemen, this is a holiday weekend. The National Safety Council estimates that 354 people will be killed. So far only 172 have been killed. Some of you folks aren't trying."

Kanter thinks this sort of thing is a far more effective plea for safe driving than an ordinary announcement, but the network brass doesn't always see eye to eye with him. Sometimes, as in the above case, Kanter wins the argument and sometimes he doesn't. One joke had to be cut because it contained the

AWalk in the Park for Mental Health

That's Advice of Ex-Reporter Mike Gorman, Aiding Fight on Mental Illness

By Mary Kimbrough

A T 7 e'clock the other morning, just before starting a busy one-day visit in St. Louis, Mike Gorman wates more than a mile through Forest Park and didn't meet another human soul. And that, according to Mike, isn't good. He believes firmly that everyone should be out taking a constitutional in the morning before letting his mind and body get tied up in knots with worry and trouble at the office. In fact, he says folis, wouldn't have so many mental miserier if they could only take the time to walk and relax and stop their headlong dash to nowhere.

Walking and relaxing and slowing down are no mere nice dreams to Gorman. He takes his own advice—before and after working hours, of course. A blue-eyed, red-haired Irishman, christened Thomas Francis but known by his nickname, he is devoting his life to the war against mental illness as executive director of the National Mental Health Committee in Washington, D.C. And he believes that a mational slowdown is essential if America hopes to improve its mental health.

In an interview before addressing the annual institute of the Mental Health Association of St. Louis, a United Fund agency, Gorman declared that the "strength of America is in the individual, and if the individual, races 70 miles an hour. "I'm worried about our country," he said. "We have thestremendous material advantages, and we don't know how to enjoy them. We're a spectator nation. We sit down at a television set and dare people to entertain us.

"And as for our place in the world, I'm tired of hearing constantly that the fate of civilization depends on America. That's all you hear, and the poor man in the street doesn't know what to do about it and he gets a guilt complex. He gets tied up in knot."

illness.

And if the rising rate doesn't reverse itself pretty soon, he predicts, by 1965 we can look for mental patients to occupy two-thirds of the hospital beds, an increase from 750,000 to 1,000,000.

very basic interest in this general subject so here are a few facts to consider.

A lawn around a house absorbs a good deal of heat that would otherwise get into the lawns around the house covered with nice green grass, your home will be cooler come summer.

A good lawn around a house can help make a basement dry and prevent it flooding after heavy rains. What you need to de here is to grade the earth around the house foundation so that it slopes down and away from the house for about six feet or more. If this slope is then covered with a thick coating of grass, it will shed water and keep-sit from reaching the basement or foundation walls.

Answer to Question 1.

YES. Problems and conflicts are normal to every growing child, and the way a child learns how to handle them determines his future strength or weakness of character. Those not taught supply most of our failures, criminals and neurotics. Nothing is more important than teaching children how to solve their own problems—especially how to get along with other people.

lished in the Reader's Digest. His second, "Every Other Bed," is just off the press.

Since that chance hospital visit which started him on this road, Gorman has made an intensive study of state and private facilities for the mentally ill and has found them shockingly inadequate.

"Just look at the situation right here in St. Louis," he said. "It's better than some, but not much. There should be large psychiatric units with every major hospital. With your two great medical schools here, you have a fine start, but far too few psychiatrists are being trained. This field needs young men. St. Louis State Hospital, with the co-operation of Washington and St. Louis universities, could be one of the finest in the country.

"Tm tired of appealing to the public for funds just for mental health. Our problem to attack is mental illness. Psychiatric facilities are always the poorest financially, yet this is the nation's biggest health problem.

Early treatment, if there is trouble, and the proper preventive measures to make sure that trouble won't arise later, are two of the vital problems, and it is in this latter area that Gorman, the mental health authority, has a few words to say to Gorman, the father of two.

and twenties. The report suggests many helpful measures and discoveries. One speaker said we are trying too much to make mental illness respectable instead of making the patient feel respected and respectable.

Answer to Question 3.

Yes, if you want to learn the final, supreme art—the art of living. The person who is always rushed, who feels guilty if he spends time at the club, or swapping stories, or window shopping or taking a walk in the woods—the best loaf of all—never takes time to live. But, if you take time to loaf and rest briefly, while working, you will accomplish more and live at the same time.

"I believe we should give children strong guide-lines but give them affectionately." he said. "We keep saying 'Don't' to a child and all of a sudden he becomes bottled up and he's afraid and we have planted the seeds of fear and worry in his mind.

"We must guide children firmly or they become confused and troubled, but let's not be afraid as parents to show amusement instead of anger if a child does something that we think is wrong. The other day, my 4-year-old got so disgusted at a television program that he threw a truck at it and broke the screen. It was so funny I had to laugh. I told him that to tell the truth I didn't blame him for not liking the show—it was so roten—but that wasn't the way to do it. That would cost Daddy money and we'd have to get the rapair man out. It he didn't dike a program, all he had to do was to turn the dial. Frankly, I was pretty proud of his critical abilities.

"Ut don't think I mean lit's right to let a child do whatever he wants to. That's license, not liberty. In this case, the boy didn't understand the cost of a television repair. He was only doing what the rest of us want to do and haven't the nerve. But a child must learn to respect property.

"I believe in spanking. If we have had two or three talks about something and I know he understands, then he disposeys and I know it's willful, that's when I give him a whack. But I believe in affectionate spanking. There's a difference, you know.

The room may be plain to begin with, and its square footage none too generous, but the fabric takes over to develop atmosphere as well as style. It couldn't be more appropriate today, as music means more and more to every home.

While so many current fabric patterns are abstract, there's an opposite trend toward those which are quite literal. And some of them are as meaningful as they are decorative, as this pattern of ancient musical instruments is. The room such pattern is used in is easiest of all to decorate. WITH BUGLER LEADING THE WAY, THE PALACE GUARD IS CHANGED IN PRECISE RITUAL AT PRINCE RAINIER'S PALACE IN MONACO.

By Willard De Lue This is the second of a series of articles on Monaco, home of Grace Kelly after she marries Prince Rainier III April 18-19 in Monte Carlo. The writer, a Boston Globe reporter, spent several weeks in the principality.

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, April 2.

If YOU want to see something like a scene from a romantic musical comedy or a novel about an imaginary Graustarkian principality, go up to the top of the Rock of Monaco on any non-rainy day, and stand, any non-rainy day, and stand, precisely at 11:55 in the morning, near the main portal of the palace of His Serene Highness, Rainier-Louis-Henry - Maxence-Bertrand, Prince de Monaco, Duc de Valentinois, and other titles to supersyste be belisted. titles too numerous to be listed titles too numerous to be listed with reasonable space.

The principal facade of the Palace of the Prince is on the Place du Palais—the Palace Square — a broad open area which extends clear across the top of the rock, from rampart to rampart, north to south.
Along each rampart, rows of ancient cannon point on the one hand to the harbor, on the other to the sea. And there's a line of them, too, facing the square from the foot of the palace wall.

square from the foot of the palace wall.

At each end of this face of the palace is a tower or two; one of those on the harbor side now a clock-tower whose bell tolls the hours for the town, another bearing a flagstaff, red and white striped, like a barber's pole, which flies the family flag only when the Prince is in residence, and on Sundays also, I find.

Those northerly towers look new, but probably are only restored a bit and refurbished; but there are four or five towers in all.

And every one of them goes back to the year 1215 when they were built under the direction of a Genoese architect named Fulco del Castello for the old Genoese family of Grimaldis.

The towers are connected by

The towers are connected by the residential areas of the palace, stucco-faced, and those facing the square stained a deep salmon tint in their lower part, and yellowish cream above.

Above this portal, carved in stone, are the arms of the Grimaldis, of whom Rainier is a descendant—two robed friars, each with one hand holding a crown above the Grimaldi shield (white, with red lozenges), and with the other waving a sword.

The sword-waving requires a little explaining.

little explaining. It seems that back in the later 1200s, when various Grimaldis, having helped the Count of Provence expel the Moors from southern France, were established on lands that had been given them—it seems that back in that time the Grimaldi of Monaco managed to get embroiled in the factional wars of the Genoese Republic.

the Genoese Republic.

Grimaldi of Monaco picked the Guelphs against the Ghibbelines, which was a wrong move. In 1296 the enemy captured his stronghold on the rock the guards, oegging politely to be admitted.

In the following January (1297) a brown-robed friar came plodding alowly up the rude path that led to the palace gate. Arriving at it he called out to the guards, begging politely to be admitted.

It has been well-pointed out that the guards must have been either sleepy, drunk or bribed, for they should have noticed that the humble monk wore stout boots instead of sandals.

They opened the gate, whereupon the friar—who was Francis Grimaldi—drew a sword, was joined by friends who had hidden nearby—and soon the castle was back in the hands of those who owned it.

So that is why friars with drawn swords are in the Grimaldi arms . . . and they

So at least goes the story.

It was in those years that the first of the Grimaldis to bear the name Rainier was the Seigneur of Monaco — the princely title and full independence was to come later.

Rainier I, a seagoer as so many of the family were, led a Genoese fleet through the Straits of Gibraltar, and in 1304 gained a signal victory for Philip the Good of France against an armada of the Count of Flanders—and won the title Admiral of France.

And another Grimaldi joined with the Genoese Antonio Doria in an assault upon the seapower of England.

coffers filled. That was before the days of gambling casinos.

Facing the palace from across the square are tall houses with two or three narrow openings between them that are the beginnings of some of the almost alley-like streets.

In the middle of town-side is the barracks of the Carabiniers of the Prince, a handsome three-story cream-colored building, adorned with many carvings and set off by pale green shutters. Its door is almost exactly across from the palace portal; and between the two runs a cleared space between two parking areas for cars.

11:50 a.m.—The sentry at the portal still pacing his post. The uniform—to begin at the top—is a somewhat light blue helmet, with the Grimaldi arms at the front, in silver, and a chin strap. The blue of the helmet matches that of loose trousers that have a wide red stripe at the sides, and at the bottom are tucked into short white gaiters.

The coat is dark blue, with red cuffs, red-and-white epaulets and fourragere and white belt. White gloves complete it. In summer it will be white.

Bugles end their playing, an old guardsman is relieved and a new guard is stationed at the main portal (with salutes and formalities, but without the ceremonial stamping of British troops), a second guard is relieved at a side gate.

The changing of the guard is completed.

To me the Rock is by far the most interesting part of the toy principality; yet I am told, and can believe, that some who come to this shore take just a brief look at it, and then spend most of the days and nights at gambling tables in the casino cross the harbor.

I have been on the Rock many times and by various routes—though the Rock itself can be reached by only two. But sometimes I set out from my hotel and walk the promenade at the harbor, which carries by to the foot of the cliffs; or I may go in through the streets and passages in behind the harbor front—through the Rue Grimaldi, for instance, where the orange trees along the sidewalk are loaded with ripe, golden fruit, and where there is a "Boston Bar" and restaurant ("English spoken," a sign says) which I must visit.

Rue Grimaldi carries me into the Place d'Armes, directly beneath the inner cliffs of the Rock. This is the traffic center of the principality. Just as the Rock is high over it on one side, so the land rises sharply up to the 2000-foot precipitous height of the Tete de Chien on the other; and unless the motorist cares to take one or two mountain-climbing detours, he must pass through the Place d'Armes if he wants to visit Monace.

I cut across a corner of the park, past the Municipal School of Decorative Arts (where young men were playing basketball in the yard) and came into the Place de la Visitation—a long building and chapel of the Lycee School on one side (most of the schools seem to be up here) and an imposing palace of the Mayor on the other.

Two narrow streets now were down with hosings and carefully swept.

Many of the street sweepers carry little pans on sticks—like what I think are called "butlers' helpers" at home. And I have seen one of them stop to sweep up a single fallen leaf!

Two narrow streets now were offered to me, and I chose that on the right—the Rue Basse.

color movie.

Finally, out of the Place d'Armes rise the two approaches to the top of the Rock—a long road slicing up the ledges and reaching the Rock's outer point above the sea, and and a zigzagging foot-ramp which ascends through ancient gates in the fortifications, and comes out at the Palace Square, between the palace and the tall, huddled buildings of the Ville. In one of my early days here I walked up the long road above the harbor, which is called the Avenue of the New Gate; and where it makes a hairpin turn at the top, came into the beautiful Gardens of St. Martin, which run all along the cliff-tops facing the Mediterranean . . . not on the right—the Rue Basse.

The Rue Basse possibly could accommodate an automobile, though I think they are wisely barred from it and other streets of its kind... though motor bikes aren't. It is a lovely little alley, with houses rising four or five stories on either side of it, and tiny shops fronting it now and again, and a few small washes hung out from windows above it.

In another or the narrow streets of the Ville I found a little cafe, and enjoyed a simple lunch. Afterwards, when I turned a corner, I came into the tiniest of squares, called the Place St. Nicholas.

Contract Bridge

This is one of the columns prepared by Josephine Cul-bertson before her death.

T is strange, but true, that cun-of-the-mill bridge players often make plays that can-not gain but can and do cost vital tricks. That was precisely what South did in the following deal: East dealer. North-South vulnerable; 30

West opened the diamond ace and (as he said later), he had a frustrated feeling when the dummy was spread. It was not that any other opening lead would have been better, but simply that the chance to defeat the contract appeared so slim. As a matter of fact, there was no chance, but in a very few moments the declarer defeated himself.

no chance, but in a very few moments the declarer defeated himself.

After laying down the diamond ace, West played the heart ace, then shifted to a low spade. East won and, on the remote chance that West instead of South had started with a singleton heart, returned that suit. Declarer, remembering East's double of three hearts and forgetting everything else, ruffed in with the jack of trumps and West breathed a sigh of relief, because his K-10 of trumps had received substantial promotion. Obviously, South now had to lose a trump trick, and with it, his contract. Wasting a club honor for the heart ruff was the sort of play that makes experts groan. A moment's thought would have told South that this play was absolutely futile. The club king was marked in West's hand. If West had started with a singleton heart, what good could it do for South to ruff with a club honor? The king would surely overruff, anyway. Obviously, the right play was to ruff low, then to take the club finesse through West.

was announced last August.

The ceremony is to be performed at noon at Mary Queen of Peace Church, Glendale, by the Rev. Joseph M. O'Toole.

Afterward Miss Speegle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Speegle, 55 Webster Acres, Webster Groves, will give a family luncheon.

Arrangements have been made hastily since the bride-elect returned home for her spring vacation. She will be attended by her Wellesley roommate, Miss Marian Rives of New Orleans, maid of honor, and by her niere, Deborah Cunningham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Cunningham, junior bridesmaid. Lt. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earle R. Clark, 1001 Trelane avenue, Webster Groves, will have his father as best man and his former roommate at Amherst College, Henry Keller of Elizabethtown, Ky., as usher.

The bride's other brother-in-lege, Henry Keller of Elizabethtown, Ky., as usher.

The bride's other brother-inlaw and sister, Maj. and Mrs. Stanley Voth, stationed at Quantico, Va., will be here for the service with their two young sons, Bill and Mike.

Lt. Clark and his bride will have a 10-day honeymoon in Florida before he sails April 20.

A few pre-wedding parties have been scheduled. The first, a miscellaneous shower, was given Friday by Mrs. Alfred Hicks and Mrs. J. George Bender at the Hicks home, 736 Fieldston Terrace, We bs ter Groves. Yesterday Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Steger and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Gilbert gave a tea at the Gilbert home, 459 West Swon avenue, Webster Groves. The rehearsal dinner will be given Wednesday night by Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham and the bridegroom's parents at the Cunningham home, 347 Linum lane, Webster Groves.

NE of the largest of the post-lenten benefit affairs will be the twenty-inth annual spring card party to be given Friday at 8 p.m. by the Ladies of the Little Flower Parish. gets home from work he is tired, but don't you think just a few minutes of his time after his meal and before he starts on the television programs? Must his wife be afraid to open her mouth? We women can't invite anyone to our homes because the guests become insulted as they are not allowed to open their mouths. I believe a father and husband deserves some peace after a day's work and doesn't want the children to make noise and run loose in the home, but as nost of the children must be in bed early, don't you think their father should love them a little? Of course, Mom still wants to hear her husband say a few words to her during all that time but perhaps this is too much to ask. So we will content ourselves with Daddy just being good to the kiddies for say half an hour each evening.

ONE OF THOSE MOTHERS.

I grant you, a man can be pretty weary after a hard day's work at the office, but what about his wife? She has worked as hard as he has and should be able to expect a little help with the children. To read a story to a baby girl or help a little boy with a new kite or just to make a youngster feel loved and cared for are some of the joys of having a home and children. When a man refuses to take much interest in his family, frankly, I don't know what can be done. Nagging will make it worse. Perhaps one answer is to find some family activities through church or school or to plan a picnic supper in the back yard on a warm spring evening. That may help knit the family a little closer and take Pop's mind and eyes off the screen for a few hours anyway. * * *

I HAVE BEEN READING so much about women moaning over the fact that their husbands are seeing other women, so I would like to tell them a few things. First, they should take stock of themselves and see what they look like in the mirror. Second, they should try to love and respect their husbands, and third, they should take a look at the other women their husbands seem to care for. Believe me, they will soon realize what the men are seeing in the "other woman." Marriage is a job and one does have to put into it all the effort and hard work you put in on any other job. I am an attractive woman myself and I put all I have into my marriage and my husband never bothers about other women. I see more and more every day just where women fall short of putting their hearts ONE WHO KNOWS.

IN ANSWER TO Ellen: Although the bride's family carries the greater financial burden of the wedding, certain expenses are the bridegroom's responsibility. They include the bachelor dinner, wedding ring (in a double ring ceremony the bride buys his ring), corsages for the mothers and grandmothers, boutonnieres for the men, bride's going-away corsage, groomsmen's gifts, groomsmen's neckties and gloves if a certain style is required, license fee, clergyman's fee and, of course, the wedding trip. If the bride's family can afford only a modest ceremony, even though the bridegroom is well-to-do, his family must not be permitted to give the wedding. Far better to plan a simple, quiet service keeping with the bride's family budget than to place a financial strain on her parents with demands for an elab

READER writes: "About two months ago I was given A a bridal shower. I received many lovely presents, but several of them were duplicates. Soon after the shower I exchanged the duplicate presents for things I did not receive and needed. Last week my engagement was broken. I would like to know what I am to do about returning the presents that I exchanged. Do I return the item I bought exchange for the original gift, or must I buy a duplicate of the present that was given me and return that? I would

If you can go to the store and exchange it back for the original present that would solve your problem. Otherwise, the only thing you can do is to explain frankly that you exchanged the present for something else and that you are returning it in place of the original.

By Elizabeth Hillyer-

VEN the handsomest pieces of furniture today are seldom in the dream class. There's certainly nothing dreamy about the way they tackle practical problems. They store in every inch, do double duty, move gracefully from room to room and make rooms useful in extra ways-no mat-ter how beautiful they are.

For example, the tall cabinet that's reigning today among the most imposing and coveted pieces of furniture. Once she has the fundamental furnishings for her home, the beginner bride is wise to choose it. She may want it badly because it adds great style to a room, but she also realizes how much it's needed to store and display wedding presents, everyday equipment, too.

THE TALL CABINET reaches upward to multiply vital stor-age space, to leave more floor space free, an important point in planning small rooms. And it's usually two-piece, so the base can be used separately

The bookcase head board that's so special in a bedroom is more likely to be called a utility headboard now because it increases its storage usefulness along with its good looks. And the nightstands that go with it take added responsibility with deep door compartments in addition to drawers. As separate pieces, they, too. As separate pieces, they, too, move on with changed plans.

TO THE ex-business girl bride, a desk is hardly considered an extra piece of furniture, and she likes hers to be organized and roomy as well as good-looking. For a dining table, necessity may dictate one that hugs a livingroom wall now, but she sees the wisdom of choosing one that's up to dining room chores later, both size- and style-wise. And the special dining chair she choos-

The Wonder of Spring---Creation Itself Esther L. Fox By Adele Starbird

THE convention in Cincinnati of the National Association of Women Deans and Counselors, which has just come to an end, was rewarding for the 630 members who attended. Not for a long time have I heard so many interesting talks.

Most women conventake tions hard. I know that I do, know that I do, going through Adele Starbird the program like an army worm, omitting no single blade of grass. As a result I saw nothing of Cincinnati, which I regret, because I formed a high opinion of the taste of its citizens, both past and present. It was based upon three things: the superb setting of the city, dramatic for sher mass, rising on its hills above the sweep of the river; the impressive Union Station, and the food at the Netherland Plaza, the best convention food we the best convehave ever had.

Beauty is the greatest single asset than can belong to a city. When you add to beauty comfort and convenience, when you have pleasant people who maintain a standard of good food, an Art Museum and a Symphony Orchestra, you have a city Orchestra, you have a city which is worthy of attention.

EVERY SPRING I try to catch the exact day when the elms change their spreading plumes of impalpable brown smoke to a pale green spray. This year it happened while I was away. And the daffodlis came out without my help; they were there on the hillside dancing in the breeze, Wordsworth's

It seems strange to say that I respect him. But he will be so responsible and adult in his new fatherhood, such a good provider, so tireless and cheerful and gallant—how could one fall to admire him? Today, however, he is hopping about rather aimlessly, free, but a little bored.

My Day

There's Time To Rest in The Country

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK

MY trip to Pittsburgh and the Teachers College at Indiana, Pa., went smoothly, and the model assembly which various colleges in the eastern section had put on there was completely successful.

Some of the students who drove to the meeting got caught in the mountains by the snow and had a pretty hard time of it. But a dance was going on when I arrived, and they seemed to be able to enjoy themselves despite any weariness entailed by the various travels. I spoke at the final session on Friday morning and then answered questions during a 20-minute period. Their questions were excellent and they seemed an interesting group of young people. Presiding was a Princeton boy who will graduate this year and who did a particularly competent job.

I RETURNED to New York right after lunch and arrived in time to make a train up to Poughkeepsie at 6:25. I found my cousin, Mrs. Forbes Morgan, here with the two children when I arrived.

when I arrived.

More of our friends will arrive during the day, but I am afraid there is not very much in the country even for children to do just at the present time. There are no wintersports, yet enough snow on the grounnd to keep you from walking comfortably in the woods; and we can't do any of the things which we will do once spring is really here, such as putting the tennis court in order.

ACTUALLY, the only reason

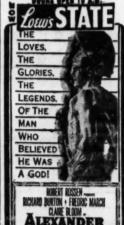

ACTUALLY, the only reason we come to the country just now is to rest, to sit in front of an open fire and read a book or sleep through a good part of an afternoon.

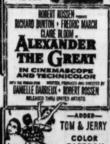

Those are the real reasons for whatever time you spend in the country at this season, Shortly, however, I hope we can see the snow melt away and a few of the early spring flowers come up. Then the busy planting time will be here and we can begin to plan for the summer flowers.

KEEP cool in this Biki origihal. Farnous designer Biki believes in looking pretty while keeping cool. So she designed this sleeveless wonder that has quiet elegance and wide appeal. Here the detail is concentrated into a top stitched fold over a full-length insertion of contract. The idea is repeated on the capped shoulders. The pattern layout is so arranged that you can safely choose a plaid or a striped material. The tie belt thas ornamental buttonholes and buttons attached to a small strip of fabric that matches the contrasting underlay and picks up the button business of the simple neckline. Make it in gingham, linen, seersucker, shantung, surah or alpaca, and if you prefer a contrasting accent, pique, linen, faille or satin are indicated for a really smart touch. The long center line is

THE island known as Great Britain has a long and exciting history. It has played a big part in the life of Europe.
Q. Was the term "Great Britain" used in ancient times?
A. No. For a long period the island was known simply as Britain.

Age. The chief ring was at Stonehenge, where the huge stones can be seen at the present day.

There is reason to believe that those who built Stonehenge prayed to the sun. The ring provided a rude outline of the light of day.

In the course of time there was a landing of Celtic people from the mainland of Europe. They knew the art of making tools and weapons from copper and bronze. We may suppose that they defeated the Stone Age residents easily, and drove them to the hills.

Historians sometimes speak of the Bronze Age Celts in Britain, but more than a celt the proper and bronze. We may suppose that they defeated the Stone Age residents easily, and drove them to the hills.

Historians sometimes speak of the Bronze Age Celts in Britain as the Goldels. Hundreds of years later came the Celts who were called Brythons or Britons. They knew the art of working with iron.

The Celts also knew how to Post-Dispatch.
